Atlanta's favorite autumn food festival returns to the open air excitement of Atlantic Station Saturday, October 13 and Sunday, October 14, 2007. From tapas to Thai, grilled to Greek, saucy to sweet – whatever you crave you'll find it at Taste of Atlanta.

"Taste of Atlanta is an annual event that people in this city look forward to throughout the year. We were thrilled last year to see the streets in Atlantic Station filled with people enjoying tastes from restaurants all over Atlanta," said Brian Leary, vice president for Design and Development at Atlantic Station.

In year's past, Taste of Atlanta has run the gamut on every sort of food imaginable all in one location. Taste of Atlanta captures the essence of the exceptional food in Atlanta, created by many distinguished and award winning Executive Chefs. Riccardo Ullio, Sotto Sotto and Fritti; Kevin Rathbun, Rathbun's and Krog Bar; Sheri Davis, Dish; Joshua Perkins, The Globe; Joe Treux and Mihoko Obunai, Repast, to name a few, have all participated in Taste's past, reinforcing Atlanta's status on the culinary map.

"My vision when I first created Taste of Atlanta six years ago is exactly what it has grown to be," Taste of Atlanta President Dale Gordon DeSena commented. "I love the idea that Atlantans can spend one amazing weekend tasting from restaurants all over this city, it's such a unique experience. I think Taste of Atlanta brings the community together with people sharing a universal love of food and Atlanta restaurants."

Taste of Atlanta is a 2-day outdoor food festival held throughout the streets in Atlantic Station on Saturday and Sunday, October 13 and 14, 2007. The event will feature more than 70 of the city's best restaurants, live cooking demonstrations from national and local celebrity chefs, wine classes and tastings, live performances and more.
